Roosevelt, Robinson Confer; Court Compromise Indicated

Washington, June 3.—(AP)—Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the majority leader, strongly indicated after a White House conference tonight that the administration may propose a compromise on the Supreme Court reorganization bill.

Robinson at the same time said he was not a candidate himself for the supreme court vacancy created by the retirement of Justice Van Devanter and that it had not been discussed with the president.

The Arkansas Senator said after the two-hour session at the executive mansion that the bill to add new justices to the court if incumbents over 70 do not retire would be pressed for action at this session.

He quickly added, however, that some amendments would be submitted and that he may offer one himself.

Robinson would not disclose what the amendments would be saying "you will have to wait and see."

There have been persistent reports, especially since Justice Van Devanter announced he would retire, that the administration may be willing to accept a bill providing for only two or three new justices instead of the five provided in the legislation as it now stands.

Robinson told newspapermen on the rain-swept porch of the White House that while some changes had occurred in the last few months which "modify the situation," there still existed the "necessity for injection of new blood into the Supreme Court."

"The chances," he did not detail, but it was believed he referred to the regularity with which the court upheld administration acts at the term just closed, as well as the Van Devanter retirement which took effect Tuesday.

In opening his statement to reporters, Robinson said there was no foundation for any reports that the court bill had been abandoned.

He suggested that the territories assigned to them be the Atlantic seaboard, the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley, the drainage basin of the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers, the basin of the Missouri river and Red river of the north, the basin of the Arkansas, Red and Rio Grande rivers, the basin of the Colorado and rivers flowing into the Pacific south of the California-Oregon boundary, and the basin of the Columbia river. To those he added, the existing Mississippi river commission, which would be left unchanged.

With a plea for conservation of the nation's natural wealth and for protection against dust storms, floods and droughts, Mr. Roosevelt proposed that the country be blanketed with seven regional authorities, to have charge of the work.

UNION REACHES TO ORE FIELDS IN STEEL FIGHT

Seeks Recruits For Struggle Affecting
70,000

CIO Calls Strike in Timken
Roller Bearing Plant

Youngstown, O., June 3.—(AP)—The steel workers organizing committee reached into the ore fields of Minnesota and Michigan tonight for recruits in its struggle for bargaining contracts with three independent steel producers—a struggle which reaches into seven states and affects more than 70,000 workers.

Philip Murray, chairman of the militant CIO, chairman of John L. Lewis committee for industrial organization, announced a campaign for members in the ore fields as he came into the Mahoning Valley, crisscrossed with steel pickets, to direct the strike strategy.

"At the same time a committee for industrial organization union called a strike in the Canton, O. plant of the Timken Roller Bearing Co., employing 6,000 men. A union official said a dispute over wages was responsible. Several thousand steel workers employed by Republic Steel Corp., previously had been called out in the Canton-Massillon district.

Announcing the strategic move in the ore fields, Murray said he was advised today that two agents of the Senate Civil Liberties committee would arrive here soon to investigate his charges that Republic Steel Corp. plants were "arsenals" and also "any other interference with the rights of strikers."

"The world's most famous couple," having motored here from the Chateau de Candé yesterday, were married yesterday, boarded the train a few minutes after midnight.

It was 12:11 a. m. (5:17 p. m. C.S.T.) when the brightly lighted train pulled out into the night toward Italy and Austria.

"Those whom God has joined together, let no man put asunder," pronounced that they be man and wife together, in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost, Amen.

Then the excited Duke and his slender, vivacious bride turned to receive the goodwishes of their friends, to be toasted in champagne, and to address to "the public" their hope that the days in which they have been compelled to live in the trying spotlight of world attention—as they have lived since the abdication crisis—be at an end.

They were to begin their life together and their search for happiness as private citizens in the "Fairland" Castle at Wasserleiburg in Austria, where the Duke visited before coming to Candé to claim his beloved.

Nothing was allowed to intrude upon the joyous festivity within the Chateau home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles, Duke of New York.

There were only two unexpected incidents.

Mayor Mercier Jorgel to bring the "Livret de Famille," the official French book presented at marriages with counsel on how to raise children—and dashed home after the ceremony to get it for the Duke.

Edward's firm and high-pitched "I will" to the English pastor was so firm and loud that guests in the flower-banked music room were startled.

The famous French organist Marcel Dupre played Bach's 29th Cantata, the B Minor Canon by Schumann and a prelude and fugue in G Minor during the civil service.

The proud bridegroom's wedding gift to his bride, friends disclosed, was of regal magnificence, a diadem of diamonds.

With four other newsmen who witnessed the ceremonies, I entered the salon of the Chateau ten minutes before the Duke came in.

Then came the bride.

She was in "Wallie blue," Edward's favorite color, a soft shade of silk in the mode for afternoon dress—hat, shoes and gloves were of matching color. The dress was of exceedingly simple lines and came up high in front. At the neck was a glittering diamond and sapphire brooch, and from her left wrist sparkled a diamond and sapphire bracelet, with earrings to match.

Dr. Mercier proceeded quickly with the short ceremony, informing the new Duchess she must obey her husband and that the Duke must provide for his wife's needs.

The happy newweds turned then to the terrace with their friends for a cocktail interlude between services, then went separately to the music room for the religious blessing.

The Rev. Mr. Jardine stood beside the altar, a "poor man's pastor" who consulted his "own conscience" and decided he must marry his former king. He had entered the room just two minutes after noon.

Edward and Major Metcalf entered the room after the guests, many of them Americans and including 15 servants of the household.

A moment later came the bride on Rogers' arm.

Duke And His Duchess Make Plea For Privacy After Chateau Rites

Monts, France, June 3.—(AP)—Edward of England and blue-eyed, American born Wallis Warfield, were married today in the ancient and turreted Chateau de Candé in this pastoral village of sunny France, and with a wistful plea for privacy to work out their own happiness departed for honeymoon in Austria.

Two simple services united the couple, whose romance roused Britain's mighty Empire to grave debate over the rights of constitutional monarchs and led Edward to quit the throne of his father because he could not have the radiant Wallis as his queen.

The rotund country doctor and mayor of Monts, Charles Mercier, read the civil service prescribed by French law before required witnesses in the Chateau salon.

The wistful, "poor man's pastor" who ignored the Church of England's opposition to remarriage by the twice-divorced Mrs. Warfield, read the religious service. He was the Rev. R. Anderson, vicar of St. Paul's Church, Darlington, Eng.

The civil service began at 11:42 a. m. and at 11:47 Mrs. Warfield had become the Duchess of Windsor. The religious service in the Chateau music room before 38 persons including this writer, was ended at 12:14 p. m. with the reluctant blessing of England's Church by the Rev. Mr. Jardine who solemnly proclaimed:

"Those whom God has joined together, let no man put asunder," pronounced that they be man and wife together, in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost, Amen.

SPECTACULAR BLAZE WRECKS SEATTLE PIER

Origin Undetermined
As Four Firemen
Are Injured

Damage to Waterfront Estimated at $100,000

Seattle, June 3.—(AP)—A spectacular fire of undetermined origin wrecked a waterfront street pier here late today, causing damage estimated at $100,000 and injuring four firemen.

Fanned by a strong north wind, the flames threatened a large part of the Seattle waterfront until brought under control by firemen, coast guardsmen and sailors of the navy tug Modoc.

The second story of the dock was used by the coast guard as a rifle range where small arms ammunition was stored. Cartridge cases flew high into the air as the ammunition exploded with machine gun rapidity. No casualties were reported.

The coast guard cutter Redwing, moored to the dock when the fire broke out, aided in extinguishing the flames. Another coast guard cutter, the Atlanta, withdrew to make way for the Modoc and two fire boats.

The fire was discovered just beneath the deck level of the terminal about 4 p. m. (6 p. m. C.S.T.).

Chicago, June 3.—(AP)—Massed elbow to elbow for a block and packed into a meeting hall, steel strikers and sympathizers paid last respects today to three of seven men who died of injuries received in a riot Sunday near the Republic Steel corporation's plant in South Chicago.

Quiet, solemn-eyed they heard Van A. Blittner, regional director of the steel workers' organizing committee, tell them:

"These brothers have not died in vain." He added the Republic Steel was but "one day nearer" recognizing their union and the C. I. O.

Blittner and the Rev. W. A. Waitmire, a Protestant minister, spoke from a dias in front of which were large floral offerings and caskets containing the bodies of Joseph Rothmund, 47, Sam Popovich, and Alfred Causey, 49.

Since midmorning the bodies had lain in state, as hundreds of men and women passed, word came of the death of Hiding Anderson, the seventh fatality in the battle between approximately 1,500 strikers and sympathizers and 200 city police.

The verdict was reached after the jurors had deliberated nearly five and one-half hours.

The jury found that the government failed to substantiate charges that the United States was betrayed and its activities impaired and obstructed by the defendants and their party, financed by PWA funds.

St. Louis, June 3.—(AP)—All of the nine defendants, five plastering contractors and four labor leaders, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government on PWA contracts, were acquitted by a jury in a verdict returned late today in United States District court.

Chicago, June 3.—(AP)—A caravans of six cars will leave Jacksonville today, early this morning, for a group of J. H. S. seniors to St. Louis where they will spend the day and witness the season's opening performance of the Municipal Opera tonight. About 30 people are making the trip, the largest number to go since the custom was started.

Every year the senior members of the Treble Clef Boys' Glee club and Mixed Choir who have good records of service to the organizations during their high school careers are treated to a performance of the "Munty" Opera. The students usually go early enough to make a day of it.

In addition to the seniors and the incoming president of the three clubs there will be the following choristers: Clyde Ooley, Hubert Litter, Mrs. Robert Allan, Miss Pearl Allison, William Vickery, Irene Groves and Helen Kamm. The trip has been arranged by Miss Lena Mae Hoppper, director of the organizations, who will also accompany the group.

Springfield, Ill., June 3.—(AP)—Ernest Lieberman, chief highway engineer, announced today his appointment by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace as one of 12 highway engineers to work with the bureau of public roads in developing standards of highway design to promote maximum highway safety and highway utility.

Chicago, June 3.—(AP)—George Lange, 31, an escaped prisoner from the state farm at Joliet, Ill., was recovering in the Bridewell hospital today from what police said was an alcoholic stupor.

He still had six months of his sentence imposed on a non-support charge, to serve.

London, June 3.—(AP)—Great Britain today submitted a three-point proposal for drawing Germany and Italy back into the non-intervention patrol of warring Spain.

Her proposals, sent to France, Germany and Italy were: (1) That safety zones for neutral ships be established in Spanish waters; (2) That the Spanish government and insurgent leaders be asked to guarantee protection of warships of the patrolling powers; (3) That Britain, France, Italy and Germany confer immediately if a warship in the patrol is attacked.

Italy and Germany dropped out of the non-intervention patrol after government planes bombed the German pocket battleship Deutschland and killed 26 men.

General Emilio Mola Dies As Airplane Crashes In Fog

Vitoria, Spain, June 3.—(AP)—General Emilio Mola, commander of all insurgent armies in Northern Spain and director of the two-months old siege of Bilbao, was killed today in the crash of a fog-bound airplane.

Two of his staff officers and two pilots died with him in the wreck near Briviesca, 25 miles northeast of Burgos capital of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgent regime early in the war and still a Franco stronghold.

Mola's body was thrown 25 yards from the wrecked plane and was so badly mangled it could be identified only by the tan waterproof coat he wore.

The bespectacled Mola was Franco's right hand man, accounted the ablest strategist among all the insurgent chieftains' lieutenants. He was in command of the drive which had carried the insurgent forces within sight of Bilbao, Basque capital on the Bay of Biscay.

Mola was flying from the Bay of Biscay front when he met his death. Only Gen. Gonzalo Queipo de Llano had a place comparable to Mola's in Franco's command. Mola was in charge in the north and even commanded the Madrid front when Franco himself was not there.

The loss of Mola was considered a tremendous blow to Franco's military campaign against Bilbao. Who would take command was not known. Insurgent radio stations shut down after broadcasting the first reports of his death.

The bodies of the victims were taken to Burgos.

Many government leaders considered Mola the ablest general in the enemy camp.

In Bilbao Basque officials, asked to comment on the death of their chief who had threatened to blot out their city if they did not surrender and whom they called "the destroyer of Guernica and Durango," said simply: "may God have mercy on his soul."

MORE GERMAN VESSELS SPEED TOWARD SPAIN

Aim To Crash Any Attack On Their
Seacraft

Berlin, June 3.—(AP)—More German naval craft speed toward Spanish waters tonight to crash any Spanish government attack on German vessels.

Just what ships were on the way was not clear. First an official statement said the torpedo boats were in the Bay of Biscay, then the official German News Agency said they were to be withdrawn from the area.

The third torpedo boat, the third of the three, was not mentioned.

The newspaper Nachrichten, reporting the dispatch of the ships, was known to foreign governments and in advance said:

"The sending of warships is a matter of self-defense which does not mean that Germany is prepared to take any measures for securing peace."

The newly reported dispatch in the wake of a dispatch from Madrid saying that German naval vessels were close to the British Isles.

Still another German vessel, scheduled to leave Spain tonight, the 6,000-ton cruiser, was not mentioned.

Then the official news agency said: "The reinforcement of German naval forces in the Bay of Biscay is a matter of self-defense which does not mean that Germany is prepared to take any measures for securing peace."

Something For Nothing

A Jacksonville man, driving west on State street near the high school about 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, saw two strangers standing in the street with packages in their hands. "Sample, sample!" one of the strangers shouted as the motorist approached them.

This Jacksonville man is of average intelligence. He has heard of the old pocketbook gag that often leads to a holdup when an unsuspecting motorist stops to get it. He doesn't make a habit of picking up strangers in his car.

Nothing wrong about getting a sample, he reasoned. He might as well have it as someone else. As for fearing a trap, that was entirely out of question. What if broad daylight, right here on one of the principal streets of his home city?

Pulling to the side of the street, the motorist came to a stop to accept the sample proffered him. The stranger said he was introducing a new washing powder which he wished the citizen would take home to his wife.

Thinking the sample distributor, the motorist was in the act of driving on when the stranger asked if he shaved himself.

"Sure," said the citizen, envisioning another sample of something or other. He might as well get all that was coming to him, he thought.

Mr. Sample distributor sprang into action. Opening the right hand door of the car, he was in the seat before the driver was aware of his intentions. The motorist found his own lap half-filled with boxes of washing powder, soap and perfumes. The sample distributor had instantly transformed himself into a most insistent salesman. The motorist knew then that he had "blitten." The first sample was a gag to stop him. He should have known better, but here he was in his own car with a stranger, who might have poked a gun in his ribs instead of cheap products into his lap.

The citizen didn't want to buy anything. All he wanted was a sample or two. But the salesman had different ideas.

"Take all this home for 75 cents," the stranger demanded. "For God's sake, man, give a fellow a break. I've got a wife and three kids to support. If you can't give me 75 cents, how much have you got?"

Mr. Citizen wouldn't have displayed his purse just then for all that was in it. He felt that he had been trapped, cornered by a slick fly-by-night salesman, who was showing him a new technique in approach.

He didn't have to stop in the first place. The stranger held out the bait, and he had taken it hook, line and sinker.

A few more minutes of high-pressure talk. The citizen was getting his dander up. He pushed the sample and other boxes back at the salesman, and invited him to remove himself from the car. Relating the incident later, the Jacksonville man said, he was almost forced to kick the fellow out of the car.

There are several lessons in this episode, which probably was repeated a number of times during the morning in one form or another.

In the first place, it impressed again the old truth that you cannot get something for nothing. Reputable companies frequently distribute samples of products, but they do not stop travelers on streets or highways to do so.

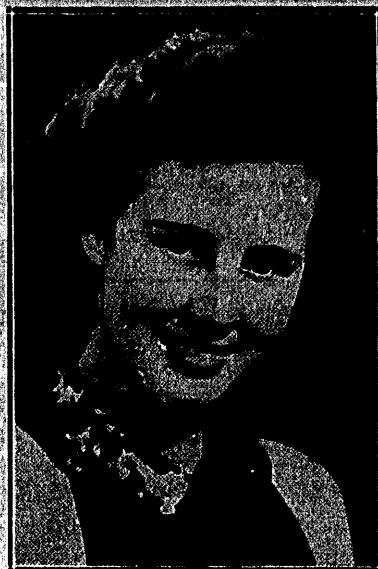

The motorist, usually careful, who he picks up, found himself with an uninvited guest in his car. The salesman, by his own admission, needed money. The sample gag might have been the forerunner of a stickup or car robbery.

The citizen later said he should have had better sense than to fall for the other fellow's racket. Instead of the salesman coming to see him, he went to see the salesman. All of course, because of that human weakness to get something for nothing.

Whether the law could step in and break up such sales practice would be a question. There is a law against soliciting rides along the highways, but we don't know whether there is a statute that covers roadside solicitation of business. Besides, the salesman didn't say "stop." He merely held up an object and shouted "sample." The entire affair was a sample of nimble-witted methods itinerant peddlers adopt to introduce their game. It was a new technique, one that the citizen failed to recognize.

Reputable dealers do not put their agents at the side of the highways to solicit business. They do not resort to high-pressure methods. If they wish you to try a sample of a product they mail or send it to you.

Should you see a stranger waving a package and hear him shout "sample," keep going. You don't have to stop. Nine times out of 10 the "sample" will have a catch to it.

experiment and some of the equally hopeful schemes promoted in this country.

The default of the bond issue—part of which was owed New York financiers—is more than the credit collapse of a provincial government. It is the collapse of a dream, which for a number of months had Alberta citizens up in the clouds.

Scribbling Boards

Visitors at Illinois state parks bent on writing their names on benches, signs and buildings have been provided with scribbling boards, advising them, "If you must leave your name in this park, leave it here."

The boards, which have been erected in a number of parks, are covered with hundreds of signatures, but the trailside maps, signs and other park fixtures have escaped fairly well, according to George Luker of Staunton, superintendent of parks.

Three persons who visited New Salem State park near Petersburg last week and left their names on park benches were compelled much to their chagrin, to return to the park and erase their writing, or face charges of willfully defacing public property.

A Dream Fades Away

The Alberta provincial government, which was going to pay everybody $25 a month in a "social credit" scheme, can't pay its own obligations. The province defaulted on a $1,650,000 bond issue Tuesday, the third such action in a year. Obviously, the social credit handouts will have to wait a while longer.

The $25 a month to everybody idea was one of the depression panaceas. The voters went for it, which is the big difference between the Alberta

Glasgow to Be Host To Picnic of Legion

South Scott Post Votes to Abandon Alternating Plan; Other News

Glasgow.—At a meeting held at their headquarters in Alley Friday evening, the South Scott county Post of the American Legion voted unanimously to hold their annual picnic in Glasgow this summer, the date set being Wednesday, August 11th.

Last year, the Legion's annual picnic was held in Manchester, and should have been held in Alley, the other town of the triumvirate in the local Post, this year, but lack of suitable picnic grounds there caused them to abandon the alternating plan.

Strawberry Season Closing.—Although the strawberry season was good while it lasted, the pickers in the W. E. Overton patch, west of town, are finishing up this year's berry crop this week. Reports from other local patches have not been received at this time, but it is assumed that they are also nearing the end of the season.

Glasgow Personals.—Sam Cohagan, Jr., of Winchester is visiting here this week with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Blair.

Mike Hazel Hammon of Roodhouse is spending the week here visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hammon.

A. L. Clark and wife of Roodhouse were calling on relatives and friends here briefly Sunday morning.

Quite a few local residents attended the funeral services for Howard O'Reilly, which were held at the Alley Baptist church Tuesday afternoon.

The tent show at Winchester is attracting quite a few of our townspeople this week.

Frank Goin and E. E. DeWitte were in St. Louis Wednesday transacting business.

Local Man Retires And Sells Business Begun Here in 1902

M. M. Cordes Turns Confectionery Over to Mrs. Arabella Combs; Started in Piano Box

M. M. Cordes, who has been in business at the same location on South Main street for 35 years, has sold his confectionery establishment to Mrs. Arabella Combs, and is retiring to look after his other interests.

Mr. Cordes purchased a lot from W. W. Ewing in 1902 and set up business in a structure made of two large piano boxes. He had a small fountain, sold homemade candies and other confections. He remained in this temporary building for about three years, and then erected the present business block which houses the confectionery and the Rainbow Paint and Paper store.

For the past fifteen years, Mr. Cordes has spent the winters in Florida. He expects to continue this practice, and to spend his summers in this community. He has several properties here which will engage his attention.

Mrs. Combs came here from Webster Grove, Mo., where she held a position, to take over the Cordes business and to be near her daughter, Mrs. Paul Vasconcellos. Mrs. Combs was formerly a food and accessory demonstrator in the local store of the Illinois Power & Light Corporation.

Astronomy, the science of the stars, plays a most important part in our everyday lives. Even our city lot lines are determined by parallels and meridians on the earth, which can be established only by observing the stars and the sun.

Early 19th century Frenchmen took no chances on not having enough to eat. Shelves beside the table contained hams, sausages, cured meats, and preserves for use in case the cook underestimated the appetites of the diners.

Ensign Obermeyer Wins Seven Prizes; Establishes Record

Former Local Youth Has Won More Prizes Than Any Man at Annapolis

Ensign Jack A. Obermeyer, former local youth, who was graduated from the Naval Academy Thursday with a record of having won more prizes than any man in the history of the academy, was given his honors, seven of them, at the annual dress parade Wednesday in addition to the events.

Ensign Obermeyer won four pairs of marine binoculars and three wrist watches during his career at the Naval Academy. He took the prize offered by the Military Order of Foreign Wars, a pair of marine binoculars, for standing the highest in his class in mathematics.

He won another pair of binoculars, presented each year by the National Society United States Daughters of 1812 given to the midshipman of the graduating class who attained the highest merit in the subject of electrical engineering, given with the condition that the person who qualifies accepts a commission in any branch of the naval service.

The Colonial Daughters of the 17th Century prize, a gold watch, for excellence in history also went to the former local youth, who also took the wrist watch offered as a prize by the Woman's Relief Corps to the student who stands first in the class in the study of economics.

Another pair of marine binoculars were presented to Ensign Obermeyer for winning the David I. Walsh prize given to the student who ranks highest in the graduating class in military law. Senator Walsh is chairman of the senate's committee on naval affairs.

For being the first honor man, an honor similar to the valedictorian title in colleges and high schools, Ensign Obermeyer was awarded the Gardner L. Caskey Memorial prize, a gold wrist watch, and also the pair of marine binoculars offered by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

During his four years in the Naval Academy, Obermeyer made a total of 921.6 points, out of a possible 1,000, an exceptionally high rating. He was also awarded the honor of giving the graduation exercise toast. "We propose three cheers for those we leave behind us," an honor given to the high ranking student.

J. F. Scott of Carrollton also was a member of the graduating class at the Naval Academy Thursday. Scott was disqualified for active military duty because of his physical condition and resigned from the navy after receiving his diploma.

Pirates Lose to Boston Bees, 6-0

Boston, June 3.—(P)—Rookie Lou Fette, the Boston Bees 30-year old right-hander, stretched his personal winning streak to four straight today as he handed the Pittsburgh Pirates their first shutout of the year, 6 to 0.

Between Fette, who muffed the League leaders with seven hits, and Wally Berger, who clouted two homers, driving in four runs, the Pirates never had a chance after the Bees posted a four-run lead in the first inning.

It was Fette's sixth win for the year against one defeat. Although he fanned only two batters, he was most effective with men on the bases, forcing the Bees to leave 11 men stranded.

Suspend Braddock, Apply $1,000 Fine

New York Commission Acts On Schmeling "Balk"

New York, June 3.—(P)—Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock was fined $1,000 and suspended indefinitely by the New York State Athletic Commission today for failing to keep his heavyweight championship engagement with Max Schmeling here tonight.

Braddock's manager, Joe Gould, drew a similar suspension and fine. "About all the disappointment Schmeling got for his five trips across the ocean, a wasted training grind and an expenditure of something like $25,000 was a nice, large eight ball."

In announcing the decision in the famous "phantom fight case," Chairman John J. Phelan said he also was advising boxing commissions in states with which New York is affiliated, that any boxer who meets Braddock before the champ defends his title against Schmeling will be suspended.

This was a direct shot at the scheduled June 22 Chicago battle between Braddock and the Brown Bomber Joe Louis of Detroit for which both men are now in training.

In Chicago, however, Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, said that the suspension of Braddock would not be recognized and that it would not interfere with the bout in Comiskey Park.

Schmeling, who plans to remain here indefinitely, was to have gone on the air tonight to tell his side of the story over a nationwide hook-up. At the last minute, however, the broadcast was cancelled when, according to Jacobs, the broadcasting company refused to accept the script prepared by the German heavyweight. Persons close to the "Schlager" said the script was full of blarney at the New York commission and boxing in this country in general.

Cleveland Defeats New York Yankees, 6-2

Cleveland, June 3.—(P)—The Indians pulled up to three games of the American League lead today by whipping the pace-setting New York Yankees 6 to 2 behind Mel Harder's effective pitching.

Although touched for 11 hits, three of them by Lou Gehrig, Harder held the Yankees scoreless through the first six innings to chalk up his third victory against two defeats.

Lefty Gomez started for the Yanks but gave way to Hubner Malone in the eighth inning, after being lifted for a pinch-hitter. The erratic southpaw, who runs in his seven innings, four of quality, and Malone allowed the Indians the other three, in the eighth.

Dean Again Refuses To Sign After Frick Compromises On Wording of The "Agreement"

New York, June 3.—(P)—For point-blank refusal to sign a modified "explanation" and "loyalty" pledge, much less an apology for alleged statements derogatory to the National league's chief executive and umpire, Jerome Herman (Dixie) Dean remained tonight under indefinite suspension, without pay.

The deadlock between the star right-handed pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals and Ford Christopher Frick, president of the National league, who banished Dean yesterday "for conduct detrimental to the best interests of baseball," remained unbroken after a heated two-hour conference, attended also by Frank Frick, manager, and Clarence Lloyd, secretary of the St. Louis club.

Automatically off the Cardinal payroll, for the duration of his banishment, Dean now faces the alternative of (1) changing his mind and signing a formal disclaimer of his alleged "populists" or (2) appealing to Commissioner Landis for a hearing, after a 10-day interval. Frick made it clear that the next move was up to Dixie.

Thrusting aside the peace-making overtures of friends, Dean climaxed the day's developments by declaring he would appeal his case to Landis and added: "If that doesn't get me anywhere, I'll sue Frick and the National league for plenty—at least $200,000—for depriving me of my job."

Although Dean made a blanket denial, verbally, that he delivered any statements reflecting upon the honesty or integrity of league officials for publication or otherwise, he steadfastly refused to affix his signature to any form of retraction.

Not even when urged to do so by Secretary Lloyd, on behalf of President Sam Bronckson of the St. Louis club, would Dean consent to sign a fourth and final compromise statement from which the word "apology" was eliminated, in a last-minute conciliatory move by Frick.

Shorn of references to many of the statements Dean is accused of making on or off the ball field, the final draft submitted by Frick for Dixie's signature dealt only with two items. One concerned incidents connected with the calling of a ball on Dean by umpire George Barr, in the game that Dixie lost to the Giants, May 19, at St. Louis. The other covered the publication by the Belleville (Ill.) Daily Advocate of a story quoting Dean as saying Frick and Barr were the "two biggest crooks" in baseball.

This was what Dean finally refused to sign in the form of a letter to Frick.

"I've felt that I owe you and the National league an explanation for certain remarks of mine which were made in the presence of newspaper men and which have been quoted in the press."

"First, as concerns the talk incident in St. Louis, it is a fact that I knew and had been informed of the talk rule a week before that incident occurred. It is true also that I knew that the talk rule was being enforced generally throughout the league and was not directed at me. It is true also that I was warned about this rule while warming up for the game in which that incident occurred."

Insofar as the particular talk which was called on me is concerned, it was, of course, a matter of umpire's judgment. In my opinion I did not commit a balk.

"The other evening in Belleville, Illinois, I was quoted as making certain statements reflecting upon the integrity of certain umpires and the National league office. I did not make those statements. In all my experience in big league baseball I have never once known of a single case of umpires who were dishonest or crooked. I of course retain the right always to question their judgment but I do not for one moment doubt their honesty or integrity."

"I trust you will accept this explanation in the spirit in which it is tendered and that the whole thing can today be dismissed as a closed incident."

"Assuring you of my loyalty to baseball, and the National league, I am Sincerely yours,"

St. Louis, June 3.—(P)—John Henry Lewis, Phoenix negro, successfully defended his light heavyweight crown here tonight by gaining a technical knockout over Bob Olin of New York midway in the eighth round of their scheduled 15-round fight.

The knockout followed a series of a half dozen hard rights to Olin's jaw. Olin went down for the count of seven, struggled to his feet, dazed by the bombardment of leather to his head. Lewis rushed in for the kill and crashed another hard right to Olin's jaw and Referee Walter Helmer stopped the fight.

MacMurray Will Begin Six Weeks Term on June 14

Summer Session Enrollment Promises to Make a New Record

Advance registrations indicate that the 1937 MacMurray summer session will break all previous records, according to an announcement made by the summer session office yesterday. The term will run from June 14 to July 23.

There are a number of changes in the school's program, the chief among them being the addition of a new field of study, speech, and the addition of "independent" courses and "auditors' privileges." The work in speech and dramatics will be in charge of Mrs. Marian Chase Schaeffer, who will offer a fundamentals course, her course in play production, and private instruction.

The summer session has provided "independent" courses to give flexibility to the program. Under the new provision an advanced student who wishes to study some phase of work on which no formal course is being offered may do so, provided she is already registered for one regular course. Before this summer no provision was made for people who wanted to attend classes but did not want college credit or to take examinations. Now such people may enroll under the new provision for "auditors."

Authorize Payment Of 15 Per Cent on Murrayville Bank

Brings Total to 70 Per Cent Paid Depositors After Bank Failure

Payment of a 15 per cent dividend to the depositors of the closed Murrayville State bank was authorized in the circuit court here Thursday morning by Judge Walter W. Wright, on a petition filed by the attorney for the bank, James M. Barnes, for the receiver, J. C. Albers.

The payment of the 15 per cent dividend as expected to be authorized some time ago, brings the total payments from the receivership to 70 per cent.

Completion of the affairs of the Alexander State Bank brought another order from the court Thursday morning, relieving Mr. Albers as receiver as soon as he files a receipt for the assets he turns over to E. E. Crabtree, trustee for the stockholders. The Alexander bank paid out 100 per cent, and the funds remaining in the hands of the receiver were ordered turned over to Mr. Crabtree on an order on an intervening petition, by the stockholders. C. R. Grunty is the attorney for the stockholders.

The final report of the receiver for the Alexander bank was approved and as soon as the remaining assets are turned over to Mr. Crabtree, the court ordered that Mr. Albers' bond, and another on Edward J. Barrett, as auditor of public accounts, be released.

State's Attorney, Oscar Zachary filed an information against Charles Edward Burmeister, charging him with burglary and larceny. Burmeister has been bound over to await the action of the next grand jury.

The court also entered an order in the case of Julius Gates Strawn and J. Frank Strawn against Ferdinand L. Strawn and Katie Strawn Brown, granting a petition in which the receiver appointed in the case will be allowed to act without bond and without entry of appearance. The petition was presented on behalf of the life beneficiaries.

Duke and Duchess Request Privacy After Wedding

The massive march from the Judas Maccabeus Oratorio by Handel was played while the Duke took his place. Organist Dupre played his own "corset" for the bride march.

During the ceremony there was the soft music of the choral "Gloria in Excelsis" by Dupre, and Cesar Franck's Adagio in C major.

"We are coming together here in the sight of God and this congregation to join this man and woman," the vicar intoned, reading from his red-backed prayer book and using the Old English service.

Calling the Duke by all his given names, he asked:

"x x x Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David x x x will thou love her, comfort her, honor her and keep her? x x x"

"I will," came the loud, firm, vibrant answer.

And then to "Bessie Wallis," the query whether she would "obey, serve, love and honor" and the low, steady answer the bride repeating:

"And to obey x x x until death do us part."

Edward received the wedding ring of Welsh gold which had rested on

WE CARRY 100 NEW CARS and TRUCKS ALSO 100 USED CARS TO SELECT FROM

Also have a lot of 1936 Trucks and will give you a bargain in order to move them at once. You will be surprised how small a down payment will drive away a fine 1936 used Truck that will do any farmer for many years.

Buy your new car or truck where you can drive it home the same day it is purchased, and where you can get parts for your truck or car. We buy Parts in car lots and there is no need of using gyp parts, on a Ford car. We can use grain, hay or livestock as down payment on new or used cars, and there is no need to consult your Banker as we have ample means to finance all Automobile deals, as money is plentiful. We never close.

We have a big six passenger sedan, 60 Horse Power Motor, $630.00 delivered to you all taxes paid. You can average 25 to 30 miles on a gallon of gasoline. This car will outsell, when used one year, for more than cars costing many hundred dollars more, as economy is what a used car buyer wants. Don't be misled by some high powered Salesman, and when anyone says 1937 Ford cars use oil, ask any man who owns one.

Come in and see us and save $50.00 on New Cars, as we do not have time to come and see you.

Farm and Rural Interest

Cass County Farmers Have More Cash as Result of 1936 Farming; Records Kept by 53 Farmers in Morgan, Cass, Menard Counties; Canning Demonstration.

Cass county farmers will have more cash available for family living expenses and investments as a result of 1936 farming operations than for any other year of the past five, judging from the annual farm business report which Farm Adviser Guy H. Husted has just received from the department of agricultural economics, University of Illinois, College of Agriculture.

The report is based on farm account books kept by 53 farmers in Cass, Menard and Menard counties in co-operation with the farm adviser, the agricultural college and more than 2,000 other Illinois farmers in a long time farm accounting project which has been in progress for nearly a quarter of a century.

The 53 account keeping farmers had an average net income of $7.16 an acre for 1936 as compared with $4.39 in 1935, $5.81 in 1934, $5.45 in 1933, and a loss of $2.72 an acre in 1932.

Each of the cooperating farmers will receive in the near future a copy of the farm business report which will enable him to compare his efficiency with the standard set by his neighbors who cooperate in the project. Many progressive farmers use the report as a basis for making changes in farm practices which will result in an increased farm income and higher standard of living on the farm.

Farm earnings in Cass county for 1936 were influenced by the yield of corn, oats, wheat, soybeans and tame hay was 75 per cent of the 10 year average for the county. The weighted average yield of the five crops for the state was 80 per cent of the 1924-33 average.

The most favored sections in Illinois in 1936 was a group of counties in the northwest section of the state, whereas counties with the lowest yields were in the south.

"Last year I saved all of my sweet corn and garden with a seed sower filled with arsenate of lime, and I saved 20 acres for one man. I expect to use the same method this year. If everyone else will, we will have corn."

Bonds Take Barely Perceptible Gains

New York, June 3.—(P)—A barely perceptible upward movement in U. S. Government bonds was the principal response of the investment market today to the announcement the treasury would borrow $400,000,000 in its quarterly financial operations.

Corporate bonds parted ways early in the day and at the close there were as many up as down. Foreign obligations, however, blazed their own way to higher ground, carrying the Associated Press average of 10 such issues up 3 of a point to 71.9.

Knowledge of the government's program failed to break the trading apathy that has beleaguered the market for several weeks. Sales of all classifications aggregated $7,750,000, par value, compared with $7,969,000 the day before. The turnover in government bonds was even more skimpy, totaling $430,000, against $1,000,000 Wednesday.

New York Stock Market

New York, June 3.—(P)—Feeling stirrings on the upside punctuated today's drowsy stock market proceedings, but at the finish gains topped losses by only a small margin.

Most speculative and investment forces apparently were undecided which way to jump, and the result was the majority merely teetered on the price fence.

Among retarding factors, brokers said, was continuation of the steel strike with no signs this controversy will be brought to a near-by conclusion.

An offsetting influence, though, seemed to be lessening of nervousness over foreign affairs. In addition, corporation earnings generally reflected the forward march of business.

At the same time the gold bug continued to nibble at market sentiment although a treasury spokesman denied any statement was contemplated at this time on the government's buying policy for the yellow metal. But it was not overlooked that devalued gold offerings were again conspicuous in London coincident with a slight lift in the official rate in the British metropolis.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank reported gold engaged abroad, principally in England and Japan, for shipment to the United States, today amounted to nearly $16,000,000.

Hog Prices Turn Briskly Downward

Chicago, June 3.—(P)—The hog market turned briskly downward today after a slow start. Prices sank 10 to 15 cents below Wednesday's average, except on packing sows which were fully steady. The bulk of good hogs sold at $11.30 to $11.55 with the extreme top at $11.65. However, very few sold late above $11.50.

Cattle ruled steady most of the day although mediumweight and weighty steers closed 10 to 15 cents lower. The extreme top was $14.25 and was paid for one load averaging 1,219 lbs. A local buyer made the purchase. It was largely a $10.50 to $12.75 market, although several loads sold at $12.75 to $13.35. Heifers were steady with grain fed kinds in demand.

Sheep and lambs were active and 10 to 25 cents higher. Native spring lambs sold readily at $12 to $13. A long string of Idaho springers, 17 deers, sold at $9.75 with a five per cent sort. Clipped lambs sold from $9.50 to $10.25 with the extreme top $10.40 on a choice deck with 60 days fleece. Aged sheep were steady.

Wheat Touches Low Level of January

Chicago, June 3.—(P)—Touching the lowest levels since January, wheat prices fluctuated nervously today, unsettled by weakness of Foreign Markets, rains in the domestic southwest and dust storms in the United States.

Prospects that the United States 1937 wheat production may total almost 900,000,000 bushels, largest crop in six years, was an important factor abroad, cables said, but the decline of 3 to more than 4 cents at Liverpool more than reflected yesterday's break here. Although lacking leadership, the Chicago market rallied almost a cent above the previous close at times but at other times prices were as much lower.

Wheat closed 1/2 higher to 1/2 lower, July 1.09 1/2-1.10 1/2, September 1.08 1/2-1.09 1/2, December 1.10 1/2-1.11 1/2; corn was 1/2 down, July new 1.22 1/2-1.23 1/2, September 1.08-1.09, December 78 1/2-79 1/2, oats unchanged to 1/2 lower; July 42 1/2, rye 2 to 4 1/2 down, July 94, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents off.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
PATRICIA WARREN, actress, secretary to Don Monteray, actor.
PATRICIA WARREN, Paul, cousin and roommate in New York.
DON MONTERAY, Patricia's employer.
ROSA MONTERAY, Patricia's rival.

Yesterday, Patricia decided she has the right to win her husband's love and she lays plans to meet him in disguise at a masquerade ball.

CHAPTER VII

IN the club dressing room Patricia dropped her cape and took one last look in the mirror. Her eyes were deeply, mysteriously blue behind the white satin mask. She threaded her way through the lounge, where crinoline and velvet clad ladies dined with giggled gentlemen and court jesters, and reached the ballroom, with its varicolored lights, tantalizing music, and gliding couples. Immediately she located Don. He stood at the edge of the dance floor in conversation with an armored gentleman. Passing him, Patricia smiled and nodded. He bowed politely but made no other response to the invitation in her eyes.

A little dashed she walked on. How did one go about it to attract a man who was definitely immune to feminine charms? Suddenly she felt a rude hand on her arm and was swung about to face a stout and perspiring buccanier, a robber of the high seas. He muttered something in a voice thick from too frequent visits to the bar. Patricia pulled away.

She tried to leave the floor but the swarthy pirate again caught her roughly. This time her blue eyes sought Don's with a frank plea for help. He abruptly left his companion and zig-zagged across the floor in pursuit. The gross, half-drunken Viking had turned the trick for Patricia. Quietly, but with determination, Don cut in. Without enthusiasm he put his arm around her slim waist, and they were dancing. Patricia's feet scarcely touched the floor; she was like a sunlit sea foam.

"Thank you," she said, softly, breathlessly.

"I was a pleasure."

"I don't know that I care for masked balls," she remarked after a silent rhythmic moment. "They allow so many privileges."

"One is supposed to be among friends," he returned.

PATRICIA's mind darted about in an effort to find some way of catching Don's attention. He was being kindly courteous, that was all.

"Perhaps you and I are friends," she said, "but I have a feeling that I never saw you before." If Don felt safe behind his mask he might relax his vigilance. "And yet I may have talked to you today, who knows?"

"Does it matter who I am?" he asked, evidently reassured. "Perhaps I have no right to be here. Any moment I may snatch your pearls and—"

"Oh, how thrilling. I've always wanted to meet a stick-up man. Tell me how and I'll help you."

Don laughed. He was enjoying himself. Patricia knew it. His femininity complex had vanished with the certainty that he was not being lionized.

"Or I may be your favorite screen star," he ventured. This, Patricia felt, was a test. If she failed to rise to the bait he was safe.

She laughed deliciously. "I'd know my favorite screen star," she told him. "She's 6 years old and about as big as your thumb."

"Then you haven't a suppressed desire among the men. How about Don Monteray? I understand he is quite popular with the ladies."

"He's all right but he leaves me cold." She glanced at Patricia's amazed eyes. She was having a glorious time, better than her wildest dreams. Her voice was alive, vibrant, no more like that of the competent Mrs. Monteray than the silvery tinkle of a fountain is like ditch water. She had caught Don's attention; he was completely off guard. "People in the public eye are a bit stuffy, don't you think?" she asked guilelessly.

HOLDING her a little away from him Don regarded her approvingly. "Too stuffy to be of interest," he agreed. "Let's talk about you. Just who are you supposed to represent? You might be a fairy queen, but you wear no crown, or the Lily maid of Astolot, or a little white cloud with a spot of gold where the sun shines on you. Wait—don't tell me. I have it. You are Goldilocks. You live in a little house near a big woods and every day your mother warns you to play in your own back yard 'cause there's bars in them woods." For a sworn woman hater Don was doing quite well. Patricia danced with abandoned joy and his arms tightened.

The music stopped and they stood together, laughing at their own nonsense. Again the music. "Tell me who you are," Don begged. "Much as I hate to do it I want to introduce myself so you can get used to the idea before we unmask."

Patricia put the fingers of her free hand over his lips. "Don't tell me. It might spoil everything."

"But it won't spoil anything to know your name." His arm drew her closer. "Please tell me."

Patricia shook her head. "You would find my name very uninteresting."

"But I want to see you again." Patricia had never dreamed Don could be so eagerly persistent. "Tell me something about you. Do you ride in the park, do you lunch at Pierre's, do you have cocktails at the Rendezvous?"

"I have tea every Friday afternoon at the Coronet Tea Garden," she said in a breathless little rush. "Almost always I am alone."

"With that she was gone. As she heard up her cape and ran she heard shouts and laughter as the guests recognized one another. Ducking into a cab, Patricia jerked off her mask and leaned back with a sigh of pure delight. At the turn of the drive she looked back. Don was in the doorway looking wildly about.

The next afternoon Rosie dropped in. Still ignoring Patricia, she obviously wished to hold on to Don. She was full of the subject of the masquerade ball.

"Did you go, Don?" she inquired.

"Yes, I was there for a while. Patricia had another engagement."

Rosie pouted. "Then why didn't you take me? I was crazy to go."

"Where you invited, Rosie?"

"Well, no," she admitted, "but that would have made no difference—with masks and everything. I heard Baker talking to the leading man at rehearsal this morning. They were all agog over a girl who had been at the party. They were trying to figure out who she was. Said she disappeared while they were unmasking. I'll bet my best hat she had crashed the gate."

"Did you see her, Don?" Patricia asked, watching him from behind her glasses.

"I don't know," he answered easily, lighting a cigaret. "I saw hundreds of women."

"I don't see why I never get to go anywhere," Rosie fretted.

The next day was Thursday and Patricia shopped. She was taking tea at the Coronet on Friday and nothing in her wardrobe quite fitted the occasion. One question hampered in her brain. Would Don meet her there?

Plans Completed at I.C. for Senior Prom

"Tweet" Hogan's Band Will Furnish Music; Decorations to Be Elaborate

Plans are complete for the annual Senior Ball, the climax of the social season at Illinois College, which is to be held this evening, in the gymnasium of the Illinois School for the Deaf. Chairmen Ralph Smith and LaMont Bell announce that this event will be the finest in recent years.

"Tweet" Hogan and his band will furnish music throughout the evening beginning at 10:00 o'clock. This orchestra is famous, over a long period of outstanding engagements at the Drake hotel, and in many states, also playing at numerous college proms.

Miss Margaret Cronan, as queen of the ball will reign with her attendant on this festive occasion. The fourth dance will be set aside for the grand march, with the queen, attendants, class president and the chairman of the ball leading the dancers. Miss Dorothy Dean Baldwin and Mary Mina Thompson will be the maids of honor. Don Krieger, Edwardsville, class president, will be accompanied by Miss Jean Campbell. Fred J. Panwitz, '36, will return to attend the ball as the escort of the queen, Margaret Cronan.

The committee is planning elaborate decorations at the gymnasium and all details are arranged for a large attendance of students as well as alumni in the city and from other cities, who are arriving in Jacksonville to be present at this time honored event tonight.
